Napoleon Bonaparte was born on August 15, 1769, in Ajaccio, on the Mediterranean island of Corsica. He was the second of eight surviving children born to Carlo Bonaparte (1746-1785), a lawyer, and Letizia Romolino Bonaparte (1750-1836). Although his parents were members of the minor Corsican nobility, the family was not wealthy.

Two years later, in 1804, he crowned himself emperor of France in a lavish ceremony at the Cathedral of Notre Dame in Paris.

In October 1815, Napoleon was exiled to the remote, British-held island of Saint Helena, in the South Atlantic Ocean. He died there on May 5, 1821 age 51, most likely from stomach cancer. Napoleon was buried on the island despite his request to be laid to rest “on the banks of the Seine, among the French people I have loved so much.”

Napoleon said that there was no word of impossible name in his dictionary

Once he announced to cross the Alps Mountain and left with his army. In front stood a huge and high-rise mountain, which was impossible to climb. There was a sudden stir in his army. Still he ordered his army to march. An elderly woman was standing nearby. As soon as she heard this, she came to him and said why you want to die. All the people who have come here, they stayed here after eating their mouths. If you love your life, go back. Upon hearing this, Napoleon got inspired instead of getting angry and quickly took off the diamond necklace and put it on the old lady and then said, you have doubled my enthusiasm and inspired me. If I am alive then you should cheer me up. After listening to Napoleon, the woman said - You are the first person who did not get disappointed after listening to me.

Those who intend to do or die and face troubles never give up. If there is a problem, there is a solution for it. No matter how difficult the destination is, if your intentions are strong, then no one can stop you from reaching your destination. Yes, you don't have to get frustrated and discouraged by the problems that come along the way, rather take the problems as a challenge.

Napoleon Bonaparte Quotes

- Never interrupt your enemy when he is making a mistake. ...
- Death is nothing, but to live defeated and inglorious is to die daily.
- A soldier will fight long and hard for a bit of colored ribbon. ...
- History is a set of lies agreed upon. ...
- Religion is what keeps the poor from murdering the rich.

Conclusion: The lesson we learnt from Napoleon's life is to make our children Brave, hardworking, determined so that even that they can make easily in worst situation.

By such personalities we can motivate our students to be hard working and strong by mind, how can they be made self dependent and a leading personality.
